

We need help – urgently ...

Daylight saving time has its good sides, everyone is in a good mood and spends most of their time outside. That's how it should be.

However, there is a reason to lose the good mood in the beautiful summer time:

This is the yield of only one dog – ticks!

We had already asked you for support in the spring and some of you supported us financially. Unfortunately, the conventional remedies do not show any effect on the ticks, they are immune to it and continue to crawl happily. Now we have to resort to an expensive means - recommended by veterinarians - (note: At this point we are not allowed to make a product evaluation, therefore no product name appears here).

The costs into autumn are immense – another unexpected expense that exhausts our already emptier donation fund. We are talking about a four-digit amount that starts with a 3.

We would be happy to provide you with only good news from happy animals from the shelter, but it is the downsides that cause us great concern.
