

Sky - a savior in times of need

Sky and his family often spend their weekends at bodies of water around Berlin. Recently they were at the beautiful Glubigsee, near Wendisch Rietz.

Sky enjoys being near the water and the peace and quiet, but he is not a fast swimmer. His humans were all the more surprised when he suddenly jumped into the water as if struck by lightning and came back to shore with a bundle in his mouth. He laid this bundle at his owner's feet.

It was a young squirrel that had almost drowned in the lake. How it got in there will probably never be known. In any case, he - Freddy - is now doing well and the family took him to a squirrel rescue center.

All's well that ends well.
