

Old, blind, yet full of courage to face life – simply left behind ...

We received a call from concerned residents who had noticed a female dog wandering around alone and aimlessly. Our staff drove to where the very friendly dog was and discovered something that no one had noticed before: the poor thing was very old and completely blind. It's easy to imagine the danger she was in.

Now the dog is safe and in the care of our animal shelter. She has a healthy appetite, which makes us particularly happy and gives us hope. In the coming days, we will do everything we can to provide her with the best possible care and medical attention. Our goal is to give her back her quality of life despite her advanced age and blindness and to lovingly nurse her back to health. Our dream would be to find her a foster home here on Aegina.

However, before we can devote ourselves entirely to her care, her admission poses an additional challenge for us: our donation budget, which was already declining for 2025, is being severely strained by the unexpected expenses for the dog's medical care and accommodation. This additional financial burden makes it difficult for us to continue to provide comprehensive help to all animals. Nevertheless, we are doing everything we can to provide the dog with the best possible care and hope that together we will be able to master this task as well.

We do this with complete conviction and help every creature in need.
